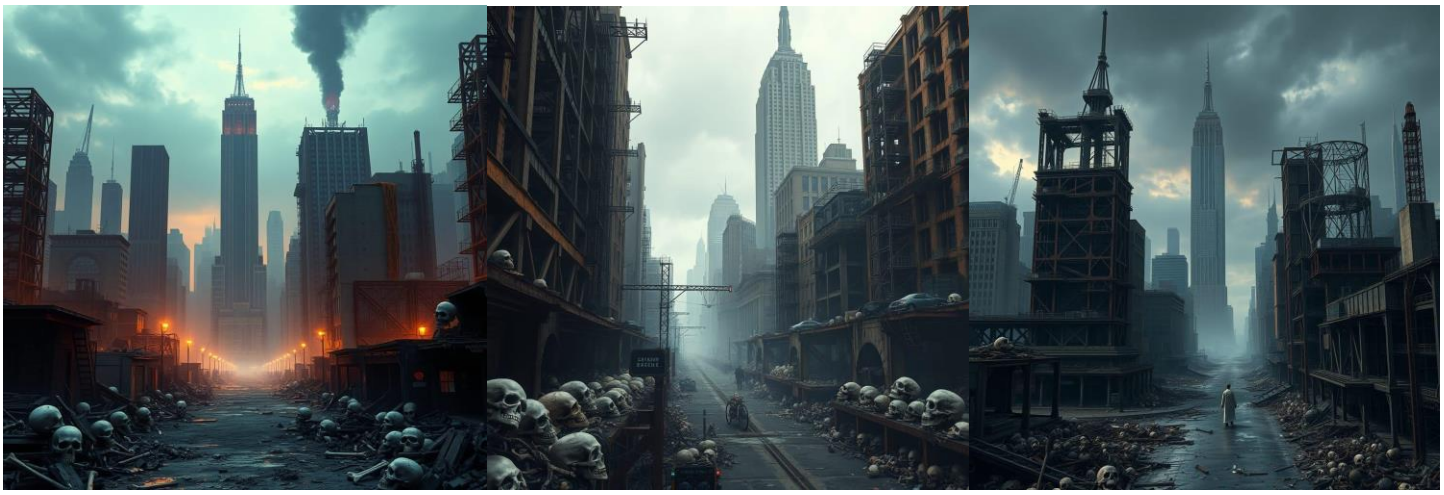
The Total Destruction Of New York City– A Lamentation



“New York sits forlorn, its towers desolate, exposing steel beams. The City of Angels sits aghast at what happened to its sister city– total nuclear annihilation! Its busy crowds– forever gone, vaporized in an instant, a nuclear nanosecond! Businessmen no longer ply its streets and busy airports. Forever gone, they sit in ruins, rusting away, its concrete crumbling, forever gone. The City of Angels cries at its plight, its ruin at God’s wrath. No longer able to stand its ruin and loss, it communicates with others, ‘what shall we do with our brother?’ Too radioactive to touch, it sits abandoned, its skulls littering the streets, bones everywhere, too radioactive to touch and put into graves. God’s wrath at the City of Sin was too much to bear, flaring out in an instant in uncontrollable wrath and rage at its wicked sinners of evil. New Yorkers forever gone, wailing at the depths of Hell itself– they wanted no part in Christ or His Kingdom of Love. They stored up wrath for themselves until it was uncontrollable, the wrath of God, cruel, vengeful, destroying all in sight. Such is the fate of all who serve Lucifer the Antichrist, amen!”
